

Planetary Ascension Postponed Due to Lack of Participation?

A Call to Spiritual Discernment

It has been six years since I wrote this article. I received a few caustic comments when I initially placed it on our website. Six years later, I do not feel the need to change much about what I wrote. Not much has changed about the need for spiritual discernment in six years. Now, with many more people jumping up on the New Age stage, there is more of a need for discernment than ever. I was not going to edit this article and place it on our website again, until someone still in possession of the 2005 version said it was “valuable.”

For six years, I have been relentlessly emphasizing the need for discernment just among people who have come to our own work with Metatron. It is an uphill battle every step of the way. People are not open to the possibility that all that says it is “Light” may not be. People are more distracted than ever wandering through the New Age Shopping Mall with all its glitz, glamour and promises of instant gratification. There is a wide-spread assumption that the ascension is just going to happen one of these days, without too much conscious effort on anybody’s part. It will happen one of these days, actually, but for those who have put some effort into their personal work. It will not be instant love, peace, freedom and prosperity for all, either, but a real opportunity to co-create and grow into same, by those who have done their personal work.

I am truthfully tired of hammering away at the cause for discernment, but in case there are others who may find this article valuable, I am putting it on our website once again.

This is the article I never thought I would write. Since 2002, I have gradually withdrawn from internet discussion forums and the mainstream Lightworker community, as a part of my work with Lord Metatron. I did so with the assumption that we were all more or less on the same page about the work at hand with the planetary ascension, although we have our varied paths and mission assignments. Through communicating, and working with quite a large number of Lightworkers over the past year and a half, I have made some interesting observations. I have also concluded that my assumption was incorrect.

The concept of personal ascension, of raising one's frequency in all of the bodies in order to be a Master/Divine Human, and thus assist in raising the planetary frequency seems to be one that is completely foreign to quite a lot of people. Somewhere, the need to do one's personal ego work and overcome fear seems to have largely gotten lost in a maze of belief systems and special agendas. People seem to believe and propagate a large variety of questionable information that comes through the immense number of channelings circulating the internet. I see people desperately looking for someone to lead them, someone to give their power over to, someone to tell them what to believe and what to do, someone to trust. I see others clearly most willing to take the power of those so willing to give it. People are off in the ethers, having completely forsaken Assignment Earth, 3d lives in various degrees of shambles while waiting to go "Home". I see the Dark T-shirt fellows that everyone is watching over their shoulders for clearly in our midst. They cloak their lower frequencies in words of seeming light, appealing to peoples' sense of hopelessness and fatigue about the planetary ascension.

The mission assignment was clear and simple, given in some of the very important books of the 90's, Bringers of the Dawn by Barbara Marciniak, The Pleaidian Agenda by Barbara Hand Clow, Kryon, The End Times, ET 101 by Diana Luppi, The Crystal Stair by Eric Klein and more. We were to transmute the dysfunctional karmic patterns of planet Earth by incarnating here and living those dysfunctional patterns. We were to awaken at the proper time, and reclaim our mastery by transmuting all the lower frequency energies within our own being and becoming the frequency of Love while still in embodied form. When 144,000 or so of us had done so, the collective consciousness and planet Earth would also transcend into a higher frequency band. The key to the process has always been "raise the frequency" individually and collectively. It has never been about anything else. All belief systems, special interests and agendas belong to the lower frequency bands of fear.

The key to raising frequency within one's own self, and attaining Mastery/Divine Humanity is to take back the power. There is no truth outside of yourself. No one has any more of it than you can get for your own self, discern within your own heart. There may be those sources outside of yourself that can assist you in discovering your truth within. That should be their only purpose, to lead you to a place of personal power. Their purpose is not to take your power by providing the "right truth" or "a nice truth" for you to believe in, or a guru/master to follow. On that basis, I share with you some of my personal guidelines for spiritual discernment in navigating the vast amount of information and promotion that is out there. These guidelines are "my truth" and do not have to be yours. It is my intent to put my truth out here, in hopes that some of you will resonate and find clarity. The planetary ascension will not happen without each one of us "raising our frequency". We are not doing that by giving our power away.

Channelings

The floodgates are open, many of us are like short wave radios, and everyone in the cosmos, White and Dark T-shirts both are on the line transmitting. We are glutted with channelings. How do we know what to pay attention to? How do we know who or what we ourselves are channeling? Channeling is NOT Holy Writ. It serves one well to read with discernment, as one would from any human source. The following guidelines could also apply to information from human sources, as well.

- The obvious is "how does it feel?" What emotion do you experience upon reading it, or channeling it yourself? Does it feel warm-fuzzy, light, comfortable, inspiring? Or does it make you feel confused/uncertain, do you have to "think" about the contents of the message?
- Is this channeling coming from a place of duality? Is it discussing the "bad guys" and judging events of our world as bad-wrong-evil? Channelings from the higher Realms of Light are not given in terms of duality and judgment.
- Is this channeling giving a lot of detailed analyses and predictions about the affairs of earth, such as politics, governments, economics, and prominent personalities? This is a no-interference zone. Channelings from the higher Realms of Light will generally not discuss our earthly affairs in such detail. The nature of time and events is always changing, and those from the higher Realms of Light will not "predict" specific events and timelines.
- Does this channeling tell you that you need to be afraid of something, that there is a chance you could fail, or not be worthy? That bad times are coming? Channelings from the Higher Realms of Light do not elicit fear.
- Does this channeling come from a place of "we out here in the cosmos are bestowing such great gifts and blessings on you humans, you should be eternally grateful"? This planetary ascension is a co-creative process. The gifts and blessings being given are because we also have done our part to co-create them. We are in allowance and we are ready for them. None are bestowed out of mercy. This is a plane of duality and karma and we must transmute that karma. Channelings from the higher Realms of Light will acknowledge this cocreatorship and do not come from a place of condescension. A channeling from the higher Realms of Light will cause you to feel loved, valued and equal.
- Is this channeling complex or confusing? "Truth" is actually simple, and those from the higher Realms of Light will want you to understand it.
- Does this channeling ask you to place power outside of yourself by promising you some kind of miracle, deliverance from above that is going to save you from your miserable earth life? Sorry, it does not happen that way. We must transmute our individual and collective karma and create our own miracles. We cannot have what we are not in allowance and Divine receptivity of. Channelings from the higher Realms of Light will acknowledge that. Channelings which make promises for deliverance are ill-disguised attempts to take your power.

- Does this channeling (or source of) give you orders, tell you that you must do specific things, that you must support a particular agenda? Does it tell you that someone or something is better, purer, more needed by you than something else? No Being of Higher Light would violate your free will, nor do they have specific agendas.

People, Groups, Services

There are a LOT of people promoting all manner of New Age classes, services, agendas – many of them capitalizing on an expanding market, offering not much of value to anyone. How do you know who's legitimate?

- Is this person or group claiming to have something you cannot get elsewhere, attain any other way, secret doctrines or teachings that are not available anywhere else, the "real" truth? No one has the "real" truth, "all" of the truth, or a "monopoly on truth". A person or group acting in high integrity will tell you that. To do otherwise is to take your power, purely and simply.
- Does this person keep reminding you that he/she is a Master, is among the most enlightened on the planet, is an embodiment of "name your cosmic being", has the endorsement of 15 or so Ascended Masters and Archangels? In my world, a Master will be known by his/her energy of Love and will need to say very little about it. He/she will not need to be listing cosmic pedigrees. True masters have always been known as very humble people. The most obvious sign of their mastery has been "how they live". These times are no exception. While yes, I suppose there are embodiments of various of the Higher Beings here on planet Earth right now, somehow I don't suspect they would use public announcement and promotion of that fact to draw people to them. We are ALL aspects of the One, so does it matter? Again, how does this person's energy make you FEEL? Anyone can tack a few cosmic names onto his/her resume. A true master has no desire to present self as superior.
- Is this person or group criticizing and attacking others, while claiming to serve the Light? Does this person or group walk the talk? Attack, criticism, blame, victimhood, are firmly based in the energies of duality and fear. Those who attack and criticize are feeding the Dark T-shirt fellows a gourmet meal. What is the group as a whole doing, aside from the leadership? What is the frequency level? How are people treating one another? What is being discussed? Is it gossip and drama? This person or group will not likely have anything to offer individual Divine unfoldment except by way of showing "who you are not".
- Is this person or group advocating the use of drugs to facilitate the spiritual process? Yes, there may be an occasional time and place where one might choose to make use of a natural substance to enhance perception and awareness. I feel that any person or group that advocates continuous and/or extensive drug use, that glamorizes drug use as a means to attain enlightenment, is quite clearly on the Dark T-shirt side and is working to disempower. When one is dependent upon a drug to attain spiritual awareness and higher states of consciousness, one is completely disempowered. All states of higher awareness are available without drugs by doing one's personal work to raise one's own frequency in all of the bodies.

- Does this person or group have an agenda, try to get you to assume certain viewpoints, back certain people/groups and oppose others? Is this person or group trying to draw you away from another? Is this person or group trying to manipulate you in any way, draw you into the fold or back to the fold with enticements, promises or perhaps even threats, however subtle? Dictate any aspects of your personal life? Any person or group in high integrity will fully acknowledge free will and choice, and will not attempt to manipulate or control anyone.
- Is this person or group's information/offering clear and understandable? Are you reasonably clear what you are signing up for, how long it will take, what the process is, what the cost is, what you're getting involved with? Do you get clear answers to your questions or are the answers evasive and vague? Is the premise confusing? Is the person or group trying to make self right and others wrong? A person or group in high integrity will be open, and "lay the cards on the table" without hidden agendas.
- What is the Integrity Level in general of this person or group? Have you been told a lie or "not-all-of-the-truth"? Have agreements been kept? Are there secrets you can't be told? Does the person or group advocate disrespecting laws or boundaries of others based on some perceived Divine Ordination? Does this person or group engage in even "slightly" illegal or unethical activities, such as violating copyrights, pirating software copies, taking advantage of ways to obtain something for nothing? Would you trust him/her/it with your wallet, your car, your spouse? What do you FEEL behind the words? If you would not trust them with your possessions and loved ones, then don't trust them with your spiritual path.
- If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. Instantaneous and miraculous transformations, while not impossible, are not the norm. Those in high integrity will not promise them or try to sell them to you. Neither will they take all the credit, as they will know that the recipient must be in allowance and Divine receptivity for the healing or transformation to occur. No one can do anything "for" you without your own co-creatorship.
- People can change. They can fall prey to ego. Those who do public channeling or other service work are idolized by people. The work itself can be a source of great stress. If a person does not take time to do his/her personal work along with the service work, it is very easy to become consumed with one's own self importance. The Spiritual Hierarchy will withdraw its support if the ego gets too much air play, and other entities with dubious agendas may easily step in. As it is, the person is so caught up in ego that he/she does not even realize it. Because one started out being a great source of light and inspiration, it does not guarantee that one will stay that way. Look at the content, don't just assume that "because it came from so and so" it is automatically divine truth.

Beloved Brothers and Sisters in the Light, there is only one agenda, and it is yours. Take back your power. Do your personal work in all of your bodies, not just the spiritual body, overcome fear, embrace Love, honor your own Humanity, and in so doing co-create your own Divinity. You do not need to look outside of your own self to accomplish this. If you choose to seek others to help you facilitate your ascension, don't give them your power. You ARE the Ascension, each and every one of you. Our collective power to transform planet Earth lies within our ability to transform ourselves, our own selves, and not everyone else. No belief system, no truth outside ourselves is going to co-create this planetary ascension. Our collective truth is simply The Frequency of Love. We all must attain it, should we wish to fully complete the assignment here on Earth. The time is NOW to look within, to practice your discernment, to use your higher guidance, stop playing into the hands of those who would stop us. You have free will and choice, each one of you who reads this article. I cannot force you to discern. I will not tell you specifically who to be discerning of. The guidelines presented herewith are mine, and you do not have to agree with them. PLEASE wake up and pay attention, though. A large number of us are clearly being sold down the river, and willingly at that.
